1.           A                           G
Running through the meadows
          D                           A
Like deer that have just been startled
A                           G
Scouts from suburban ghettos
D                    A
Learn to be un-haltered

- C:           D                   G                   A                   D
Minds floating free, like the Clouds in the sky
D                   G                   A                   D
Lives full of glee, as scouts find with their eye

2.           A                           G
Swimming in the river
          D                           A
Like salmon going home
A                           G
Pulling out a sliver
          D                           A
While around the camp they roam

5.           A                           G
An overnight hike
          D                           A
To the toilet bowl
A                           G
Campfire skits
          D                           A
Near that great swimming hole

3.           A                           G
Cots around the campfire
          D                           A
Pillow fights just for fun
A                           G
Thunderstorms and lightning fire
D                    A
Kids on the run

6.           A                           G
Turning over rocks
          D                           A
To find a scorpion
A                           G
Lots of dirty socks
          D                           A
But life keeps going on

4.           A                           G
An ancient oyster bed
          D                           A
In layers of rock
A                           G
Planting ideas in a young head
          D                           A
That helps them take stock

6.           A                   G
Which by his strength
              D                   A
Setteth fast the mountains
A                   G
Being girded with power
              D                   A
7.           A                   G
Which stilleth the noise of the seas
              A                   G
The noise of their waves
              D                   A
And the tumult of the people
8.           D                   G
They also that dwell
              A                   D
In the uttermost parts
D                   G
Are afraid at thy tokens
                          A
Thou makest the outgoings of the D
morning and evening to rejoice
9.           A                   G
Thou visitest the earth
              D                   A
And waterest it
A                   G
Thou greatly enrichest it
              D                   A
With the river of God
A                   G
Which is full of water
              D                   A
Thou preparest them corn
A                   G
When thou hast so provided for it
D                   A
(Praise waiteth for thee)
10.          D                   G
Thou waterest the ridges
              A                   D
Thereof abundantly
- D                   G
Thou settlest the furrows thereof
              A                   D
Thou makest it soft with showers
D                   G
Thou blessest the springing thereof
A                   D
(Praise waiteth for thee)
11.          A                   G
Thou crownest the year
              D                   A
With thy goodness
A                   G
And thy paths
D                   A
Drop fatness
A                   G
12.          They drop upon the pastures
                  D                   A
Of the wilderness
A                   G
And the little hills
              D                   A
Rejoice on every side
13.          D                   G
The pastures are clothed with flocks
              A                   D
The valleys also are covered
D                   G
Over with corn; they shout for joy
A                   D
They also sing
1.           A                   G
Praise waiteth for thee
              D                   A
O God, in Sion
A                   G
And unto thee
                  D                   A
Shall the vow be performed
